BOY SCOUT NEWS

Everything is in full swing at Camp Roosevelt, the summer outing grounds of the Boy Scouts of the District of Columbia, according to officials of the organization who have just returned from a trip of inspection. Hutton Thompson, president of the District council, and Edward D. Shaw, scout executive, were most enthusiastic over the success of the camp this year, and expressed themselves as confident of the most successful season of the organization.

The camp is conducted under the personal direction of Linn C. Drake, who has been its director for the past four seasons. Mr. Drake is assisted by H. A. Matsinger, who is in charge of activities; James D. Hall, who is quartermaster and in charge of the commissary; Capt. Warren Hazzard, who has spent his life on Chesapeake bay, again handling the boat; K. R.
 Hall, director of swimming and water sports; George H. Anderson, chief carpenter, and Fred Stuart, assistant to the director of activities. A physician is in attendance at all times to look out for the health of the scouts and oversee the sanitary conditions. Two army cooks provide fine, wholesome food.

New Equipment.
 The camp, as the result of the base ball benefit game recently given at American League Park, has been supplied with the following much-needed equipment: Eleven large, new tents, sixty new wire spring cots with mattresses, a new kitchen range, a hydraulic ram to force water from the artesian well to the reservoir, and some new rowboats.

The following scouts are now at camp: Troop 1—R. C. D. Hunt, Stribling Marshall and R. C. Marshall.
 Troop 2—Henry Gichner, John Berry and Robert Burton. Troop 3—Ray-

History of Your Name.

BY PHILIP FRANCIS NOWLAN.

RITTER
 VARIATION—Rutter, Reuter.
 RACIAL ORIGIN—Middle English, also German.
 SOURCE—An Occupation.

There are many who regard the surnames Ritter and Reuter as distinctly German. So they are in a great many cases, and probably in a great many more cases in this country than in England. Indeed, if the names are traced back sufficiently far in England, you'll find their origin in a word originally German.

That word, however, was adopted into English before it gave rise to the surname, and it is particularly interesting as throwing light on the military tactics and organization of the middle ages.

The word, of course, meant "rider," and its first use in England was to designate a certain type of mounted mercenary, often hired by the British monarchs out of Brabant and the surrounding country. Gradually it came to be applied to all mounted mercenaries, however, whether English or foreign. Records of such soldiers are found in English history as early as 1173, before the wane of the French tongue and the emerging of the old Anglo-Saxon speech, drastically changed by contact with the former, into what became the basis of modern English.

It was most natural that many such soldiers settled down and took unto themselves wives and reared families through the three or four centuries in which family names took form. It was most natural that the word should stick to them in a descriptive way among their neighbors, and in the course of time that their children should come to be known by it also.

silk hose at 95c

But the "hurts" are trivial, involving such technical irregularities as an oil spot or thickened thread—scarcely anything to affect looks or wear.

The full-fashioned silk hose have mercerized tops;
 the seamed backs are silk, excepting garter tops and feet.

Black, white, cordovan, Russian calf, and tan.
